58TH SESSION OF INSTITUTE

Teachers of the County Gather here for Annual Week of Pleasure and Instruction. Almost All here. Address of Welcome.

The fifty eighth annual institute of the teachers of Adams County opened in Brua Chapel this afternoon with almost all of the more than two hundred teachers present. The address of welcome was made by Prof. Walter R. Reynolds of the local High School faculty who said in part:

"It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to Gettysburg to share with us the inspiring and encouraging helps we shall receive during the coming week. Gatherings of all kinds are always welcome in Gettysburg but Gettysburg always extends an unusually warm welcome to an assembly met in the interests of education. Let me summarize briefly a few of the educational features of the town and you can easily see why it manifests this educational spirit.

"First the government takes a decided step toward educating her citizens in the story of the battle of Gettysburg. The United States has done everything in her power to make the grounds impressive and instructive. Yearly people come here to learn the great lessons. Old veterans, feeble and weak, come here each year and seek some reminiscent spot where a comrade gave his last full measure of devotion that this nation might live. Here people come to reverence the spot where was delivered the flower of American prose. Here, also, come yearly students of military academies to study the tactics and science used by the two armies.

"Then we have the college which gives the town its cultural standard. During the summer a summer school is conducted and a Chautauqua course rendered. We have a public school system of which we can well feel proud. I mean not only the schools but the auxiliary organizations as well, which are doing wonders for our public schools. Where in a town of this size we can find so many phases of education? Surely a town such as this always extends a most cordial welcome to teachers.

"But the question occurs, 'Do all modern improvements alone increase the progress and efficiency of school work?' Better school buildings and equipment do not necessarily mean better work. It is the personality of the teacher, his or her mental equipment, aim, enthusiasm and character which tell more than material betterments. It has been said that a good teacher with a single and a piece of chalk is a greater power than the most pompous professor of incompetency enthroned in the chair of instruction under the loftiest roof of a new university.

"I have in mind one of my former instructors. He was offered better positions in various lines again and again but to all he replied, 'I live to teach and will teach as long as I live'. Such men cannot fail, and with such men as teachers the public schools must be a grand success.

"The teaching profession has become a serious work and one of which any man or woman can feel proud. In one year's time the lives of over fifteen million children are either marred or beautified. These young children who are now gathering knowledge from our lips, in the coming years, will rise up either to praise or to condemn us.

"A school teacher is seldom heard of outside his immediate field of labor but his influence goes out into all the earth and his words to the end of the world. For as your influence helps the lives of those under your care that influence will be transmitted from generation to generation.

"He who said 'Let me make the songs of the people and I care not who makes their laws' would have spoken nearer the truth had he said 'Let me select the elementary teachers and I care not who shall be their subsequent guides', for in these is laid a foundation which is little apt to be upturned.

MONDAY EVENING

Dr. S. D. Fess Attraction at Teachers' Institute.

Dr. Nathan Schaeffer, state superintendent of public instruction, has the following to say of Dr. Fess who will lecture before the teachers' institute in Brua Chapel this evening: "Prof. S. D. Fess' style is attractive; his lectures are full of historical information; and he never fails to win the ears and hearts of his audience. His instruction is very helpful to those who care to know more of our history than is found in ordinary books."—advertisement.

SUNDAY BLAZE IN M'KNIGHTSTOWN

Charles Johnson Loses Several Buildings with All the Contents. Church Goers Help Fight the Flames.

Fire on Sunday morning destroyed the barn, stable and chicken house of Charles Johnson, of McKnightstown, and threatened other structures, causing unusual excitement in the West End village. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

It was first discovered by H. E. Riddlemoser and C. T. Lower who hurried to the scene and succeeded in getting a horse and buggy from the burning building but practically all of the remaining contents were destroyed including hay, straw, about $50 worth of wire fencing and a number of other articles. Mr. Johnson who owned the barn and contents carried no insurance.

The fire occurred just at the time when the people were starting home from church services at both Cash-town and McKnightstown and a large crowd gathered to watch the blaze and to render what help they could. Their arrival was very fortunate for several other stables were very nearby and a more disastrous blaze threatened several times. The barn of Curtis Sowers was on fire repeatedly but vigorous work always subdued the flames there before they got beyond control.

Mr. Johnson's buildings were located in the rear of his store. Adjoining were the stables of Mr. Sowers, the hotel property and others while H. E. Riddlemoser had a large amount of material in that section.

JOHN W. PAXTON

Respected Resident of Goodyear Dies while Visiting Daughter.

John W. Paxton, a resident of Goodyear, died at 11.30 p. m. on Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Howard Cline, of near Hunters Run, after a short illness. He was aged 68 years and 25 days.

Mr. Paxton was a man who enjoyed respect and esteem of a large circle of friends who will miss him greatly. He was especially known for his acts of kindness.

He leaves his wife and the following children, Mrs. Howard Cline, near Hunters Run; Miss Catharine Paxton Harrisburg; Mrs. C. B. Lutz, Mechanicsburg; Thomas Paxton, at home; Mrs. Percy Pierce and Miss Lottie Paxton, of Harrisburg; three grand children and one brother, Jacob Paxton, of Barnitz Station.

The body will be taken to his home at Goodyear on Tuesday from where the funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 9.30. Services and interment at Mt. Tabor church, Rev. Mr. Stine to officiate.

DOES KILLED

Four Does Killed by Careless Hunters. Institutions Get Meat.

Four does fell before the leaden hail which inaugurated the open season of deer in the vicinity of Caledonia Park Friday. One of the carcasses was sent to Chambersburg hospital and the other three to White Pine Camp. Thus far no arrests have been made for these unlawful killings and it is not known that the game wardens have any evidence on which to make arrests. Some hunters shot a doe at the intake dam. There is a penalty for this. Instead of notifying the constable that he had broken the law, this hunter stole away. Forester Conklin found the carcass, still warm, and had it sent to the Chambersburg hospital.

MUST STAND TRIAL

Engineman in Recent Wreck Arrested in Adams County.

M. U. Brehm, engineman of the Philadelphia & Reading freight train that ran into an empty train of Western Maryland coaches near Shippensburg Monday, October 7, was arrested in Adams county by Sheriff Walker of Franklin county, Friday afternoon, charged with criminal negligence and manslaughter. He was taken to Chambersburg, here he gave bail in $1000 for his appearance at the December term of court. Mr. Brehm came over into this county for a visit after the accident. Four members of the crews of the two trains involved were killed and four injured. Brehm was one of the latter. His home is in Harrisburg.

BUSY DAY IN TOWN CHURCHES

St. James Christian Endeavor Society Holds Anniversary Service. College Church Talks of Building Parsonage.

In the presence of an audience which completely filled the new church the St. James Christian Endeavor Society on Sunday evening celebrated the twenty fourth anniversary of its founding. The song of the society were used, Miss Lillian Ring sang "I heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and the choir sang the "Hallelujah Chorus." The Scripture lesson was read by Charles S. Bream.

Reports were heard from the two branches of the organization—the Senior and the Junior. For the former Stewart Rudisill reported a membership of 177, annual contributions of $85 to missions and a pledge of $250 toward the erection of the new church. The activities of the numerous committees were also outlined. During the past year thirty five new members have been added to the society.

Miss Maud Miller reported a large membership in the Junior society and told of the activities of that branch. They contribute $25 annually for the support of a boy at the Lutheran mission in Liberia, Africa, and have pledged $50 toward the erection of the new church.

The address of the evening was by the Rev. F. E. Taylor who used the washing of Jesus' feet by Mary as the subject for his sermon. He emphasized the need on constant and every-day service for the true Christian. He suggested more co-operation between the various Christian Endeavor societies of the town.

After the regular morning service in the College Lutheran church on Sunday a congregational meeting was held and it was reported officially that Rev. William E. Stahler, of Lebanon, had declined the call extended some weeks ago. The committee in charge of securing a new pastor indicated that they would have a favorable report to make at a meeting to be held several weeks later. At this meeting there will be submitted to the congregation plans for a new chapel to be erected at the rear of the church and to be used for Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and other purposes. It has not been decided definitely that such an addition to the present church shall be built.

Sunday morning the council also recommended that the congregation purchase a lot on Springs avenue for the erection of a parsonage and that a house be built thereon to cost approximately $5,000, the plan to be much like that of the house of Dr. Ellis Musselman, now in course of erection there but to be three feet larger each way and to contain two finished rooms on the third floor. Action on this recommendation was deferred until the meeting to be held in several weeks.

SURFACE COMING

Dr. H. A. Surface to Give Lecture in Brua Chapel.

Dr. H. A. Surface, known throughout Pennsylvania as the energetic head of the State Department of Zoology, will deliver a lecture in Brua Chapel on the evening of Tuesday, December 3, as one of the numbers of the college free lecture course. Dr. Surface takes the date which had been announced for Rev. Dr. Peschau, of Harrisburg, Ohio. Dr. Peschau is ill in a hospital in that city and will be unable to fill the engagement. Dr. Surface's work in educating orchardists of the state is well known to the people of Gettysburg and the county and his talk should be of special interest here where fruit growing is such an important industry.

B. B. TROUBLE

Berlin Branch Crippled when Tender Falls into Pit.

Engineman J. W. Smith and Conductor E. F. Melhorn, of the Berlin branch railway, got into trouble recently with their iron horse. The engine, for some reason skidded as they were about leaving the round house at East Berlin, and leaving the track went out through the side of the building, the tender falling into a pit. The wrecking crew was summoned from Hanover to replace the engine and tender. In the meantime the mail was hauled to and from Hanover in an automobile.

WENT DOWN WITH COLORS FLYING

Gettysburg College Boys Lost Hard Fought Game and Gave Dickinson Big Scare. Large Crowd and Good Contest.

Gettysburg went down with her colors flying on Nixon Field Saturday afternoon when Dickinson administered a defeat of 20 to 13 in an exciting and spectacular game which held a large crowd of spectators on edge from start to finish.

Though defeated Gettysburg can lay claim to one of the best exhibitions of foot ball, not to mention nerve, pluck and "come-back," that an eleven representing the orange and blue has ever put up. They sent the Carlisle supporters home a disappointed and empty-pocketed crowd for they had come here prepared to bet at odds of 5 to 3 that they would win with a margin of twelve points, and they had found ready takers.

Running up fourteen points against Gettysburg before the locals got together and adding six more shortly afterward following a fumble in Gettysburg's territory, the Carlisle collegians thought they had an easy task before them and were completely surprised when Gettysburg came back in the second half, swept them off their feet, scored two touchdowns and had carried the ball within ten yards of the goal line for a third when the whistle blew and the game was over.

Dickinson got the jump at the very start of the game when they kicked off only a few yards to the side of the center of the field and secured the ball. Dunn, their star, pulled off several runs around the ends after tries at the line failed and a touchdown was tallied in exactly two and one half minutes from the time the whistle blew. Gettysburg got the ball not long after the kick-off, showing good defense, and had started down the field for several first downs when a fumble lost the ball. Again Dunn started and after carrying the ball to the thirty yard executed a beautiful forward pass to Shearer which resulted in the second touchdown. In the second period a third touchdown was made on end runs and a forward pass after the ball had been gotten on a fumble.

Dickinson paraded between the halves and Gettysburg sat gloomily, apparently with visions of a disgraceful score being added to the record of the season. But with the re-appearance of the team all took on new life. Assistant Coach Liebegott took charge of the cheering section, the eleven started to tear things up and it was Gettysburg's day from that on.

Gettysburg kicked off, soon secured the ball on downs and then started a march for the goal line which they reached after gains of from three to twelve yards, Meaffie taking the ball over. The period ended without further score. In the fourth period Gettysburg scored again when Hoar on the thirty five yard line shot a beautiful pass to Poffinberger and he slid with a tackler five yards over the goal line and between the posts.

The time was growing short and Gettysburg worked hard for the third touchdown which, with its goal would tie the score. They marched right along and Captain Beegle had reached the seven yard line on the last play before the whistle blew.

Gettysburg's entire team played a remarkable game while Dunn was Dickinson's shining light. A little incident in the game caused much delight among those who were watching the big Dickinsonian captain. There had been a lull in the play and when all were ready to resume Referee Bennett called "Ready Gettysburg? Ready Dunn?"

Prior to the game Prof. Wentz presented to Captain Beegle of Gettysburg a huge bunch of yellow chrysanthemums tied with blue ribbon and to Captain Dunn an equally large bunch of white chrysanthemums tied with red ribbon, as a token of the student body's belief in fair play and that the better team would win.

TO CONDEMN PIKE

State Highway Department Takes Steps to Get Bedford Pike.

State Highway Commissioner Bigelow has at last determined to bring condemnation proceedings against the Chambersburg and Bedford Turnpike Company, of which Attorney J. A. Strite, of Chambersburg, is president. The capital stock of this company is $150,000, which sum the state has refused to pay. The pike extends from Memorial Square Chambersburg, westward across Fulton county to the Bedford county line.

Proceedings will be begun in Franklin and Fulton county courts, the attorney general acting for the highway commissioner. In these courts the state will be represented by the Hon. John W. Hoke, who will take action at the December term. The action will be in the nature of a petition asking the court to appoint viewers who shall assess damages.

It is the purpose of the state authorities to make this turnpike part of the state road system. Some negotiations looking to the taking over of the pike have taken place but, neither side being satisfied, the courts are now to be asked to intervene. For a time the stock sold at public sale for $6.00 per share. The last purchaser at public sale was Mr. Strite when he bought nine shares for $12.50 per share.

RABBITS COLLIDE

Two Fleeing Cottontails Collide on Trail. Both Killed.

Two sportsmen in the southern part of Franklin county, tell a remarkable hunting trip story. They say they with their dogs, while on an expedition a few days ago succeeded in jumping a rabbit; at the same time several hunters nearby also jumped one. The dogs chased the rabbits, the little animals jumping into a narrow path—running toward each other in their scramble for life. Traveling at a rapid rate, they struck each other head-on with terrific force. "So hard was the impact," said the hunters, "that one of the rabbits was knocked senseless, while the other was killed by the sportsmen shortly afterward."

MILLINERY specials. Silk velvet black hats $2.00 black beavers $2.98 and $3.50 Regular $2.00 felt hoods $1.50, children's hats accordingly low priced, also trimmings. Mrs. D. J. Riele, Chambersburg street, First National Bank Building, basement. Advertisement.

ATTENTION: church societies. It may interest church, and other societies, to know that money can be made by saving old papers, magazines, etc. If members will send what they may have to the society's rooms, or some other designated place so that a fair size quantity may accumulate at one point, one shipment may be made to Schmidt & Ault Paper Co., York, Pa., who will pay the highest cash price for same. ## FINAL BATTLE RAGES IN TURKEY

Roar of Cannon Plainly Heard in Constantinople.

TO LAND BLUEJACKETS

Ambassadors Decide to Send Forces From Warships to Protect Foreigners.

London, Nov. 18.—Bulletins received from several British correspondents from the front agree that the long-expected battle at the Tchatalja lines is progressing. The cannonading is heard clearly in Constantinople.

An official communication says that an attack by the Bulgarian right wing at Blyuk Chekmedic has been successfully repulsed. Another message says the Bulgarian left wing has been repulsed.

The French ambassador telegraphed that the battle was still in progress.

Still another message said that in view of the heavy cannonade all day the ambassadors had decided to land detachments of bluejackets from the foreign warships to guard the streets leading to Pera. The small warship Lorely was assigned to protect the railway station.

According to the same message perfect order prevailed in Constantinople.

The villagers from the neighborhood to the firing lines, flocking to the upper Bosphorus, are legion. They are in a panic and numbers are begging for admission to the grounds of the ambassadors' summer residences at Therapia, Blyukdere and Yenikui. The Spanish ambassador has opened his gardens at Blyukdere to them.

Those who have visited the Turkish front doubt considerably the ability of the defenders to hold the forts. Some declare that the Turkish army, strengthened by reinforcements and with an abundance of ammunition and provisions, will make a good stand, while others cannot believe an army still containing remnants of forces so badly beaten in previous engagements can hold out. In addition, cholera has invaded the camp, to further demoralize and dishearten them. And, again, the Bulgarians will have the advantage of superior artillery.

Servians Attack Monastir.
Ushub, Nov. 18.—The battle for the possession of the city of Monastir, in Macedonia, continues.

The Turkish troops number 40,000, and they hold good positions. The Servians have seized important positions along the line, including Tchailar and Sofeche, and, it is stated, command the city.

The Servians also captured some of the Turkish guns. The Servians, who are said to number 100,000, have 200 guns, including siege guns and howitzers.

It is believed that they will not storm the city of Monastir, but will reply to the Turkish fire with artillery.

It is stated that the city of Adrianople is now invested by Servians only. All the Bulgarians have gone to the Tchatalja lines.

The Servian besiegers propose from now on merely to isolate Adrianople and not to assault the Turkish works.

312 Turks Killed by Explosion.
Athens, Nov. 18.—News was received here of a terrible and death dealing explosion of a powder and arms magazine at Salonika. Three hundred and twelve Turkish soldiers were killed, some being blown to pieces. Four hundred and thirty Turks were wounded and many houses were wrecked. The debris was strewn for some distance.

The Turkish magazine was near the barracks where the Turkish prisoners of war were confined. The losses were among those prisoners.

It is stated that the explosion was an act of revenge perpetrated by the bands of the outlaws Sandansky and Mondjoff. It is believed that the bands took this action as the result of the Turks killing many of their men at Kratin.

THUGS ROB HER OF FINGERS
Cut Off Four to Loosen Woman's Hold on Bag Containing $150.

New York, Nov. 18.—While Yetta Lanes, fifty years old, a wealthy real estate owner, was held up by two men and robbed of $150 in Avenue A, near Twelfth street.

The tips of four fingers of her left hand were cut off by one of the robbers when she tried to seize his knife as he cut away a handbag, the strings of which were wound several times around her arm. In the bag was the rent she had collected a few minutes before in a saloon she owned.

Chinese Troops to Destroy Poppies.
Amoy, China, Nov. 18.—Opium growing has been resumed so extensively in the Tungan district of the province of Fu-Kien since the revolution that General Huang Sing, commanding the southern army, has ordered a military expedition to proceed there and destroy the poppies.

Quarrels With Fiancee; Jumps In River
New York, Nov. 18.—After a quarrel with her fiancee, Charlotte F. West land, a young widow, committed suicide by plunging 150 feet into the East river from the Manhattan bridge.

TO COMPLETE CANAL ON SCHEDULE TIME

Delay in Delivery of Material Retards Work.

Washington, Nov. 18.— Practical completion of the Panama canal by July 1, 1913, is assured, according to the annual report of Colonel George W. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal.

On that date, in spite of several slides in the Culebra cut during the past year, the excavation in the cut will be completed, and by Aug. 1, 1913, the spillway at the Gatun dam will be finished. The concrete work about the locks and dredging of channels to the sea will be finished between Jan. 1, 1913, and July 1, 1913.

Delays in the delivery of material and machinery for the gates of the locks has retarded their construction somewhat, though Colonel Goethals believes everything will be done on schedule time in spite of these handicaps.

More than 34,000 men are now employed on the canal work. The natural decrease in employees, accompanying the lessening of construction work on the canal, was offset by the inauguration of the work on the fortifications and the docks and piers for the Panama railroad and for the general terminal facilities. Of the employees, 5101 were Americans.

It is recommended by Colonel Goethals that the economy and efficiency commission created by President Taft install a new system of accounting, to go into operation when the construction of the canal ends and the operation and maintenance begins.

WOMAN WITH 3111 SUITORS

"Must Have Husband or Lose $30,000" Caused Deluge.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Who is Miss Z. X. Radcliffe? All Elgin wants to know, including the postmaster, H. D. Hemmens.

He has 3111 proposals of marriage for her from men in all parts of America. The letters containing the proposals are reaching Elgin at the rate of 300 a day and are interfering with the office routine.

The suitors undoubtedly are looking for word from Miss Radcliffe with a great deal of interest, for to each of them she offered not only her hand, but $30,000.

The cause of the flurry is a letter made public by Miss Radcliffe, in which she wrote:

"If I do not get a husband by 1913, I will lose a fortune of $30,000 and a large estate. I do not care if the man is a hod carrier or a bricklayer, so long as he is well-mannered and is kind."

Maniac's Confession Explains Death of New York Boy.

New York, Nov. 18.—The records in the coroner's office in New York bear out the text of a postal card addressed to Chief of Police Regan, of Lackawanna, from the maniac. It reads:

"Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—Wednesday night.
"Dec. 10, 1902, I enticed Michael Diac Kruck, a newsboy at Eighty-sixth street and Central Park West, New York city, into the park opposite the entrance to the arsenal police station, and I abused him, and later strangled him, and just escaped the police officer who found him."

Kruck's body was, on the date mentioned, found in an excavation at the point where West Eighty-sixth street terminates at Central Park. A coroner's inquest held on Jan. 12, 1903, resulted in the finding by a coroner's jury that death was due to asphyxiation by strangulation, inflicted by some unknown person.

SAYS HE KILLED TWELVE BOYS

Brutal Murderer Confesses by Mail.

TALE PARTLY CONFIRMED

Postal Card Told Buffalo Police Where Disembodied Body of One Victim Was Hidden.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The dismembered corpse of seven-year-old Joseph Josephs, murdered by an unknown maniac, was taken from the vault of an outhouse in the rear of a saloon on the Kidge road at Lackawanna, N. Y.

The body was found in sixteen parts, the skull being the last portion recovered. The flesh had entirely disappeared from it.

It does not appear that the body had been carved or chopped up, but that it had become dismembered in the twelve months it had lain in the slime of the outhouse, where it was crammed by the murderer after he had first assaulted and then strangled the little Syrian lad.

The Josephs boy had been missing for a year, and his body was found by means of postal cards written at intervals to the Buffalo police and the newspapers. The last card described the spot where the body of the lad was buried.

One of the postal cards written by the depraved murderer of the boy stated that he had killed twelve other boys. The police at first were not inclined to believe this, but Chief of Police Regan declared that after communication with other cities from which postal cards had been mailed by the murderer that the boastful murderer probably is telling the truth in regard to the number of crimes he has committed.

Postal cards received from time to time since the disappearance of the Josephs boy were dated in Boston, New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

Offers of rewards aggregating $1500 failed to give any trace of the boy, but the postal cards telling of his death appeared quite regularly at police headquarters, at the home of his parents and at the business house of the boy's father, who is a wealthy Syrian merchant.

For a time these cards were ignored by the police, but when last Friday one was received describing the exact spot where the body was buried the police and medical examiners began an investigation, which resulted in the finding of the body, piece by piece. The last part found was the head.

Immediately after the boy was unearthed the police appealed to the postal inspectors to try and trace the writer of the cards.

The murderer writes that he is a thirty-second degree Mason, and declares that on Wednesday he will return to Buffalo and give himself up to the police. This, it is thought, is merely a blind to forestall a search for him.

Declaring that two other boys were attacked by him, the writer gives the places where the attacks occurred, and in one instance, that of a newsboy stationed at an outlying street car transfer point, the police have verified this statement.

Since the finding of the Josephs boy's body the police are looking up records of children's disappearances within the last eighteen months and find that seven, all boys under ten years, have disappeared and have not since been heard from.

RALEIGH, N. C. CHILD

Made Strong and Well by Vinol.

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in our whole stock for making weak, puny ailing children strong, robust and rosy we are only telling you what has been proved by hundreds of mothers.

Mrs. W. O. Strother, Raleigh, N. C., says: "My little girl, Hazel, has been taking Vinol to build her up after a severe spell of sickness. It has done so much good by restoring her appetite and building up her strength that I think Vinol is the finest tonic ever prepared and I am telling everyone about it."

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for every weak, and ailing child because sickly children need the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains—that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine healthy color. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they do not. People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.

ENORMOUS WASTE OF COAL

One Reason Why the Use of Oil as Fuel Would Be of High Economic Importance.

The United States is by all means the greatest coal producing country in the world. In 1850 the production of coal in the country amounted to 6,266,233 tons. Thirty years later it had risen to almost 64,000,000 tons. In another twenty years this industry had grown to over 240,000,000 tons. Ten years more passed and the production of coal in the United States by the census of 1910 was over 400,000,000 tons. For the year just past it is estimated at about 500,000,000 tons. But in the production of this coal the industrial experts inform us there is wasted 250,000,000 tons. In other words, the United States is using its coal supply at the rate of 750,000,000 tons a year, and this consumption is increasing, as shown above, at an enormous rate.

By the western sea and throughout the great southwest the production of coal is not of great direct interest. In this portion of the country petroleum largely takes the place of coal, and in the production of petroleum California leads all other states in America and indeed all the world. This is a new industry compared with coal. The statistics show that in 1898 the United States produced little more than 60,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum, forty-two gallons to the barrel. In 1910 the production of petroleum in the United States surpassed 182,000,000 barrels. At the present time in California the consumption of oil runs to about 225,000 barrels a day.

There is no such waste in the use of oil as that indicated above in coal. Indeed, the waste in the oil industry from beginning to end is a matter of comparative insignificance.

Signs of Age.

There are various ways of telling when a man is getting old. One of the surest ways by which he may know it himself is to find that young women address him as "sir." One "Yes, sir," will age a man by an indeterminate sentence of anywhere from one to five years. Then there is the mustache, which, if allowed to get out into the open, instead of being closely shaved, will show the mere and yellow, or rather gray. (This is not to be spelled "grey," but "gray.") Then, again, there are the wrinkles which add themselves one to another in the forehead, but there is one sure way of telling of advancing years, which beats all of the others, as it never fails. When a man is seated between another man and a pretty girl and another passenger enters the car, if the man moves in order to make room for the newcomer and moves towards the man in the seat, thus allowing the new arrival to come between him and the pretty girl, instead of moving closer to her himself, he is really, truly getting old. And nobody will notice his advancing age any more quickly than the pretty girl.

His Golden Text.

A union Sunday school service was held in a St. Louis church a few months ago, and the superintendent had thought that in order to make the service more impressive it would be a good plan to have six-year-old Johnnie go to the rostrum and repeat the golden text of the morning. This Johnnie consented to do. The golden text was "I am the bread of life."

When it came time for Johnnie's part of the program he rose from his seat with calm assurance and walked boldly down the aisle to the rostrum. Once upon the rostrum, with the sea of faces confronting him, Johnnie's calm assurance suddenly left him. Things looked entirely different from the platform. He hesitated, standing first on one foot and then on the other. Finally in a shaking voice he shouted:

"I am—a loaf—of bread!"

Have You a Dream Pillow?

The "dream" pillow may measure 15 by 10 inches and may be stuffed with elderdown or hair as it is liked, hard or soft. Carry it when you travel. Take two plain linen covers with hemstitched hems. A third cover of heavy satin, with a monogram embroidered in blue, is useful for a steamer chair.

Easy to pack is an automatic air cushion that, when inflated, is 9 by 15 inches. It is of cloth, with a silken finish and fits into a flat leather case, measuring 5 by 11 inches. Extra linen covers can be made to fit this pillow if it is to be used at night.

Overdoing It.

Woodrow Wilson, at a luncheon at Spring Lake, said of a boy athlete: "I am afraid he sets athletics too far above English, mathematics and history. His aunt said to him the other day:

"I'm delighted to hear of your success on the school baseball team, Harold; but you must remember that there are other things in life besides baseball."

"Yes, aunt, I know," said the boy, "but, hang it all, I'm afraid I'm too tight for football or rowing."

The Male Boy.

Governor Marshall of Indiana said the other day that he who demands special privileges of the government is a beggar.

"Millionaire or not," said the governor to a reporter, afterward, "the man who holds out his hand for help begs. The fact is self-evident. It needs no proof. Even to state it seems superfluous—seems like the shout of young Benedict, who entered his club roaring:

"Hurrah! A young son! It's a boy!"

SAMPLE OF FALL HATS

BLACK AND WHITE STILL FAVORED IN MILLINERY.

Combination Makes for Economy With the Woman Who Can Plan for the Future—Millinery That Always Looks Well.

Two fine examples of hats for fall are shown here, both in combinations of black and white. Although designed to sell for early wear, either of them is a good all-winter hat and after ushering in the season for its owner will serve to do duty as second best when the time of velvet and plumes, fur and fluffy feathers, arrives with the snows.

The first hat is made of moire-silk in black laid over a buckram shape. The same model is very handsome made up in mole color and white. It is a difficult hat to make and takes the art of the professional milliner, for everything depends on perfection of workmanship in a hat of this character.

The shape is outlined with jupings of white velvet and trimmed with soft double wings in black and white. They are very effectively mounted. The wing at the left side springs from under the band and lies over the crown. That at the right lies against the band.

The second hat is quite soft, the brim-covering of felt or corduroy is fitted over a rice net foundation. The coronet is edged with a border of black velvet, and the crown is also of black velvet.

An applique of white silk passementerie makes a pretty finish about the brim. Two short, broad wings in white are mounted with little bows of white ribbon, one against the crown and one against the brim at the left side.

These hats look well with any costume; for their simplicity of composition is a difficult simplicity and a characteristic of elegance. The black and white combination also is always fine, so that such hats may be used on many occasions and with a variety of gowns.

HUGE DEMAND FOR MESH BAGS

Fashion Appurtenance Will Be More Popular Than Ever Before According to Outlook.

Fads and novelties are to play a large part in the jewelry trade, which is starting with a rush in the factories and among the importers of Malden lane.

Two fads of recent years are to be more popular than ever before, the jeweler says, despite prophecies made last year that each had nearly run its course. These are the fads for mesh bags and bracelet watches.

The manufacturers cannot make the mesh bags fast enough to meet the demand. New and ingenious machinery is being hurried into place at a number of factories where it has been found quite impossible to make enough of the bags by hand. The bags are now being made in countless sizes, shapes and designs, and the materials range from solid gold and silver to plated and cheaper metals.

Diamonds, pearls and other gems are used in the ornamentation of some of the costly bags made of solid gold and platinum by handcraft in original and exclusive designs. The purchaser may pay several hundred dollars for the more expensive of these bags; but if a cheap bag is desired there is a wide range down to the German silver article to be had for a few dimes.

Watch manufacturers have been predicting the end of the fad for bracelet watches, but the season now starting finds the demand at its liveliest, and the manufacturers, whether they like it or not, are obliged to push the work on this specialty in order to keep their share of the trade.

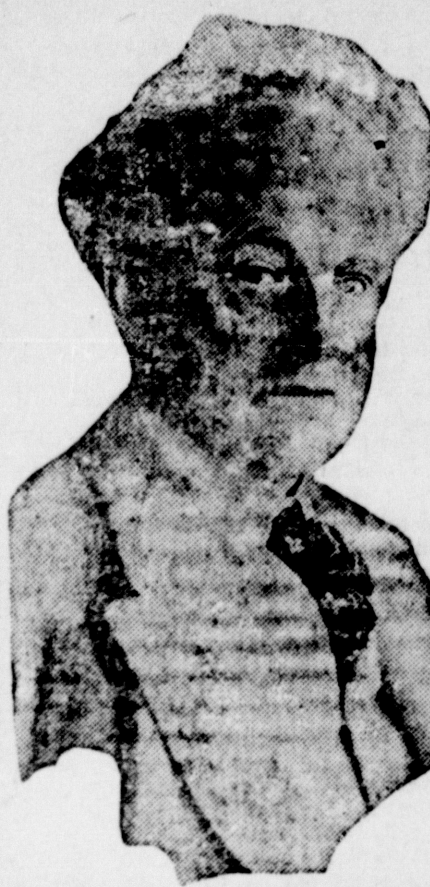

See to it that the colt does not become constipated. A small dose of castor oil is a good thing to get the bowels started.

Too often the dairy, poultry and hog work are side lines on the farm. Make them the main line and they will lead you to profit.

Fill the producing cows up on clover hay or alfalfa hay if you can get it instead of fodder or other coarse stuff containing low feed values.

BRIDE, AGED 10, GETS A DOLL FOR PRESENT

Other Wedding Gifts Were Mostly Toys.

Thibodeaux, La., Nov. 18. — Agnes Callahan, aged ten years, was married here and quit the third reader class in the public school.

Her husband is Paul Dietz, twenty-three years old. The girl wore short dresses during the ceremony, but immediately afterwards announced that she would have her gowns lengthened, as she was a "married woman now."

The priest who performed the ceremony was opposed at first on account of the age of the prospective bride, but because the parents of both of the contracting parties insisted that the wedding should take place, he finally yielded.

Dietz's present to his bride was a huge doll that would open and close its eyes. Nearly all the wedding presents were toys, but the bride declared that she would not play with dolls any more. The wedding was the result of a courtship begun when the bride was almost a baby.

MODEL SUES FOR $50,000

Daughter of Wealthy Parents Accuses

Morality Leaders. Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 18. — Rose Drew, a beautiful girl artist model at the Carnegie Institute Art School and former vaudeville artist, entered suit against Dr. F. A. Rhodes and George Seibel, of the morals efficiency commission, and Policeman John W. Barry for damages in the sum of $50,000, charging conspiracy.

Some of the charges in the suit are sensational. The girl, whose real name is Conly, is the daughter of parents who live at Connellsville, Pa., and it was on the advice of her mother, a prominent social leader of that section, that the damage suit was entered.

The Drew girl was arrested at her sumptuous apartments in Oakland on the night of Oct. 1 by Policeman Barry on orders from Dr. Rhodes, and was held a prisoner until next morning, when she was sent to the Home of the Good Shepherd by Magistrate Curby. According to the statements of the Drew girl, she was forced to a most completely debarbe between the two men in her apartments.

Pardoned Woman Dies.

New York, Nov. 18. — Nellie Waldron, the twenty-three-year-old woman who was released from the Belford Reformatory Oct. 19, on Governor Dix's pardon, died of tuberculosis in Bellevue hospital. The report that she could not live was the reason for the governor's clemency. The woman was sentenced four years ago for shooting and killing her former sweetheart, G. F. McDonald. The girl's defense was that McDonald had jilted her after promising marriage.

PLAN RAPID WORK ON NEW TARIFF

Ways and Means Committee-men Have Data.

UNDERWOOD TO DIRECT

The Only Sign of Friction Among the Democrats Concerns the Sugar Schedule.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Leading Democrats agree with Senator John Sharp Williams that the work of the extra session of congress should be confined to tariff and trust legislation.

Bills reducing the tariff on metals, wool, cotton and sugar will be passed by the house early in the session and later the chemical and minor schedules will be taken up.

The ways and means committee has collected tariff information, gathered together by tariff experts. It was said by Chief Clerk Roper, of the committee, that there will be no necessity for a long-drawn-out fight over any of the tariff bills. The ways and means committee, as it is now composed, will not be changed much by the new congress.

Unless there should be an unlooked-for revolution in the house, Oscar W. Underwood will be the dominant factor in framing tariff measures, as he was last session. He has the best organized committee in congress, and his sub-committees will be put to work on the various schedules the day the extra session convenes, and one schedule after another will be brought out as they were in the last extra session. The committee, as far as the Democrats go, is a harmonious organization.

Senator Simmons, who is in the line of promotion to the chairmanship of the senate finance committee, is on friendly terms with Representative Underwood. He has said that he will redeem the pledges of the Democratic platform as accepted at Baltimore. Senators Martin and Simmons will arrive home next week, and Representative Underwood is due on Wednesday.

President-elect Wilson and the leaders of congress worked in harmony during the campaign. They will work together in Washington, it is believed, and the president will be the buffer between the leaders of the senate and house and William J. Bryan, should one be needed.

While the president-elect is resting at Bermuda during the next few weeks, the Democrats of the two houses will endeavor to settle the general program to be followed at the extra session. It has not been determined as yet whether one general bill will be introduced, embracing wool, cotton, iron and steel revisions, which the Democratic house has previously passed, or whether each of these tariff schedules will again be brought forward in the form of a separate bill.

Little time will be necessary, it is believed, to perfect wool, cotton, metal and chemical bills, but the Democratic leaders are not agreed over the sugar tariff, and this situation is puzzling the managers of the party in both houses. The house free sugar bill, passed at the last session, did not meet the approval of the Democrats in the senate, and it still rests in a conference committee of the two houses.

President-elect Wilson's determination to call the extra session perfects a record of practically continuous work upon the tariff since the special session called by President Taft in 1909. Following the general revision of that year, embodied in the Payne-Aldrich bill, there have been attempts to devise a Canadian reciprocity system, and to revise certain schedules of the tariff law, but no changes in the tariff have been effected since the passage of the Payne-Aldrich law.

RUNAWAY COW DOWNS HIM

Man Who Tries to Stop Her Gets a Painful Disappointment.

Easton, Pa., Nov. 18. — Elmer J. Kline, of Ficksville, was seriously hurt when he attempted to stop a runaway cow running through the public road near this place.

Kline stood in the middle of the road and waved his arms, thinking that the cow would stop, but it didn't. It ran into him, knocked him down and trampled on him, one of its hoofs resting on his throat. He is badly hurt, but will recover.

Fatally Injured by Explosion.

Phillipsburg, Pa., Nov. 18. — Harry Kline, eighteen years old, a miner, residing at Sanborn, Clearfield county, was fatally injured by an explosion of dynamite. He had placed percussion caps on a stove, and in starting a fire forgot to remove the caps. One exploded and he brushed the others off the stove. One fell into a can containing dynamite and exploded it. Kline's face was blown off.

Child Drowns in Oyster Float.

Chincoteague, Va., Nov. 18.—Everett, the four-year-old son of W. J. Adams, Jr., was found drowned in an oyster float near their home. The child was thought to be at play in the yard of his home and was not missed for some time. When the father searched for him he was found in three feet of water. It is thought the child tripped and fell into the float while playing.

HUNT HEIR TO $500,000

Attorneys Advertise in an Effort to Find Frank Rowan.

New York, Nov. 18.—In an effort to get some trace of Frank Rowan, the sole heir to the estate of Samuel Rowan, a silversmith, who died in Sheffield, Eng., about five years ago, attorneys for the estate have inserted the following advertisement: "WHEREABOUTS of Frank Rowan, actor. WILCOX, 273 Queen's Road, Halifax, England."

Frank Rowan, who is forty-three years old, was Edna May's leading man in "The Belle of New York" fifteen years ago. The actor's wife, Mrs. Marie Rowan, said:

"Mr. Rowan went on the road with the company and disappeared in San Francisco about fourteen years ago. I was a girl in the chorus, but I stayed here in New York.

"We were married about four years before he disappeared. The estate left by Samuel Rowan, who was my husband's uncle, is valued at more than $500,000.

"About three years ago I employed detectives to find my husband. They reported that in a San Francisco cemetery a body was registered under the name of Frank Rowan. There was nothing, however, to prove that the body was that of my husband, but he must be dead.

MISS CLEVELAND COMES OUT TODAY

Makes Debut at Reception at Princeton Home.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 18. — Miss Esther Cleveland, daughter of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, will make her debut this afternoon at a reception to be given for the purpose by her mother at Westlands, the Cleveland home in this city.

Miss Cleveland, who is the second, though the eldest living, child of Mrs. Cleveland, was born in October, 1893, in her father's second administration. She has moved quietly in society. Her favorite pastime is lawn tennis.

The engagement of Miss Cleveland to Randolph D. West, of New York, son of Professor Andrew D. West, of Princeton, has been rumored several times recently, but denied by both the families.

On Oct. 29 Mrs. Cleveland authorized the announcement of her own engagement to Thomas J. Preston, professor of archaeology and history of art at Wells college.

BOY, HUNTING, KILLS CHUM

Gun Accidentally Discharged and Victim Bleeds to Death.

Coatesville, Pa., Nov. 18.—Accidentally shot by his companion, John Oliver, sixteen years old, Albert Linton, eighteen years old, bled to death in a field near Wagontown, West Caln township.

The two boys, who had been playmates since childhood, were hunting rabbits. As Oliver was changing his gun from one shoulder to the other it was accidentally discharged and the load entered Linton's body on the left side above the thigh.

Alone in a clearing, several miles from a house, and his companion dying from the wound, young Oliver stood beside his fatally wounded companion and screamed for assistance.

Two hunters in a nearby woods heard the cries and responded. Physicians, who arrived after the victim had died, say he would have possibly lived had the flow of blood been stopped in time.

Young Oliver went to Wagontown and gave himself up to Squire E. W. Grubb. Deputy Coroner Grubb held an inquest and a verdict of accidental death was rendered. Oliver was then released.

TIED GIRL TO A COW

Rejected Lover Then Stampeded Animal and She is Dangerously Injured.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 18.—Manitoba police went to Newdale, Man., a farming district seventy miles northwest of here, and arrested Peter G. Hanson, of Erickson, eighteen miles out of town, for a case of cruelty almost unheard of.

Falling to secure return of his attentions from Maggie Warrenski, he caught the girl while she was driving the cow's home and tied her to a cow's horns. The animal was stampeded at the same time by Hanson, and the cow tagged the young woman through the woods until it finally shook off its burden.

The girl's clothing was torn from her body and she is so dangerously injured that there is little hope of her recovery.

Ankle His Savings Bank.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 18.—When the body of Bartholome Tiarana, of Parkview, killed by a premature blast in the Coleraine mine, was being gathered up by fellow-workers, $250 in bills were found tied in a wad around his left ankle, where he evidently kept his savings. The money was turned over to relatives.

Two Killed in Mine Explosion.

Clinton, Ind., Nov. 18.—In an explosion in the Deering Coal company's mine, Preston Robbins and Frank Underhill, shot-firers, were killed. Powder cans and parts of the shaft were hurled several hundred feet into the air, falling among workmen just leaving the mines, but no one was injured.

Are you keeping a lot of horses for which you have no special need? Let the other fellow have them at present prices.

When the pumpkins and squashes are gathered, do not put them in the cellar at once. They will keep much better if stored in some dark outbuilding until real freezing weather comes.

NO TRESPASSING

THE MYSTERY OF THE JADE SPEAR

"Are you Inspector Peace, Sir?"

He looked what he was, a garden-er's boy, and he stood on the platform of Richmond station regarding us with a solemn, if cherubic, countenance. The little inspector nodded his head as he felt in his pocket for the tickets.

"I have a cab waiting for you, sir."

"Are you from the Elms?"

"Yes, sir. Miss Sherrick sent me to meet you, having heard as you were coming."

We walked up the steps to the road-way, climbed into the cab, and, with the boy on the box, dragged our way up the steep of the narrow street, past the Star and Garter (the hostelry of ancient glories), and so for a mile until, at a word from our youthful conductor, the cab drew up at a wicket-gate in a fence of split oak. As we stepped out a girl swung open the gate and stood confronting us.

She was a tall and graceful creature, with the delicacy of the blonde coloring a beautiful face. There was fear in her blue eyes, a fear that widened and fixed them; and a tremor of the red lips that told of a great calamity.

"Inspector Addington Peace?"

"Yes, Miss Sherrick."

There was that about the little in-spector which ever invited the trust of the innocent, and also, to be frank, no inconsiderable proportion of the guilty to their special disadvantage. I have noticed a similar confidence inspired by certain of the more famous doctors. So I was not surprised when Miss Sherrick walked up to him, and laid her hand on his arm, with a confident appeal in her eyes.

"Do you know they have arrested him?" she said.

"I had not heard. What is his name?"

"Mr. Boyne."

"The man who found the body."

"Yes. The man I intend to marry."

I liked that sentence. It was stronger than any protestations of his innocence that she could have made. Peace marked it, too, for he smiled, watching her with his head to one side in his solemn fashion.

"You cannot think he is guilty," she said quietly. "You are too clever for that, Inspector Peace."

"My dear young lady, at two o'clock I heard that a Colonel Bulstrode, of the Elms, Richmond, had been stabbed to death in a road near his house. That was the single fact tele-graphed to Scotland Yard. Taking my friend here, I caught the 2:35 train, and I was on the Colonel's advice that he took a house near us when he came home this spring.

"I first met Mr. Boyne last Christ-mas, when we were skating on some flooded meadows by the Thames. He is a lawyer, and, though he is doing well, is by no means a rich man. Un-fortunately, I am an heiress, Inspector Peace."

"I understand, Miss Sherrick."

"Colonel Bulstrode expected me to make what he called a first-rate mar-riage. Mr. Boyne and I had been en-gaged for two weeks, and at last we decided to tell the Colonel. We knew there would be trouble, but there was nothing to be gained by continued postponement. Mr. Boyne made an appointment with him for one o'clock today."

"The morning seemed as if it were never to end. As the hour approach-ed I could wait in my room no longer. I slipped out of a side door into the upper garden, which lies at the furth-er side of the house. I wandered about for some time in great misery. When I heard the stable clock chime the half-hour, I started back to the house. It must have been decided between them one way or the other."

"I had reached the drive and was walking up to the front door when I saw Cullen, the butler, come running out of the Wilderness—as we call the shrubberies where we now are—and so across the lawn towards me. He was in an excited state, waving his arms and shouting. Cullen is so stout and respectable that I could only conclude that he had gone mad. When he was some twenty yards off, he caught sight of me, and slunk away towards the front door as if trying to avoid me."

"What is the matter, Cullen?" I called to him.

"He slackened his pace, and finally stopped, with his eyes staring at me in an odd fashion."

"You came in with me, miss," he stammered. "It's no mischief of your making. Eh, eh, but it's ugly work—black and ugly work."

"What do you mean, Cullen?" I said as boldly as I could, for his man-ner frightened me.

"The Colonel has come by an ac-cident, miss, down by the wicket-gate. I was going for a doctor."

"I did not wait to hear more. I was very fond of my guardian, Mr. Peace. He had a hot temper, but to me he had ever been kind and con-siderate. As I started, however, Cullen came panting up and tried to turn me back towards the house."

not, I did not mean to let him fright-en me. So I avoided him, and set off running across the grass to the Wil-derness gate—the one through which we have just come. I had almost reached it when I met Mr. Boyne. I he begged me not to believe any rumors I might hear about him. Then he went away. Afterwards, as I was looking down the drive with a po-lice-man. Several of the servants were gathered at the front door watching and pointing. I don't know how—but the suspicion came to me—perhaps it was through what Cullen had said. I ran down the stairs and ordered them to answer. At last they told me—he had been arrested—for the murder."

We waited for a while, and then the little inspector rose, and, in his courteous manner, offered her his arm. She took it, looking at him through her tears.

"He is innocent, Mr. Peace," she said.

"I trust so, Miss Sherrick."

They moved off up the walk, I fol-lowing behind them. We emerged from the shrubbery on to a broad lawn. The house, a sprawling old mansion of red brick, was before us. We crossed the grass, and, turning an angle of the house, came to the porch, from which a drive curved away amongst the foliage of an avenue of elms.

The central hall was better fitted for a museum than a habitation of comfort-loving folk. Bronze gods and goddesses glistened in the cor-ners, dragons carved in teak glared upon the eastern arms and armor that lined the walls, the duller hues of ivory and jade contrasted with the brilliant turquoise of old Pekin vases. It was here, among these spoils of the east, that Miss Sherrick left us, walking up the stairs to her room, as fair a figure of beauty in distress as a man might see.

As she disappeared, a tall, thin fel-low in plain clothes stepped out of a door on our right and saluted the in-spector.

"Good afternoon, Sergeant Hales," said Addington Peace. "So you have arrested Boyne?"

"Yes, sir."

"On good grounds?"

"The evidence is almost complete against him."

"Indeed. I shall be pleased to hear it."

"Well, sir, it stands like this. Mr. Boyne called upon Colonel Bulstrode about one o'clock. He was shown into the library and—"

"One moment," interrupted the in-spector. "Where is the library?"

"That is the door, sir," answered Hales, pointing to the room from which he had emerged.

"Perhaps it would be easier to un-derstand if we go there?"

The library was a long, low room, lined with shelves that were in a great part empty. It projected from the main building—evidently it was of more recent construction—and thus could be lighted by windows on both sides. To our right were two which commanded the drive; to the left two more looked out upon a plot of grass dotted with flower beds, upon which several windows at the side of the house, at right angles to the library, also faced.

"Pray continue," said Inspector Peace.

"About ten minutes later, Cullen, the butler, heard high words passing. A regular fighting quarrel it sounded—or so he says."

"How could he hear? Was he list-ening in the hall?"

"No, sir; he was in his pantry, cleaning silver. The pantry is the first of those windows at the side of the house. The library windows be-ing open, he could hear the sound of loud voices, though, as he says, he could not distinguish the words."

The inspector walked to an open lattice and thrust out his head. He closed it before he came back to us, as he did to the second window on the same side.

BETTER SCHOOLS

Prof. Hickman, well Known Here, Ur-ges New Methods.

Prof. J. N. K. Hickman, the new city superintendent of public schools, Lancaster, is making a strong effort to have industrial education introduced into the curriculum. There are too many books, in the opinion of Prof. Hickman, who is well known in Gettysburg. In a report to the School Board he said:

"Today the pupils have books in school and books out of school, but very few people make their living out of books. We need in our schools a graded course in the industrial arts, including sewing, weaving manual training, domestic sciences and voca-tional guidance."

Recently the School Board opened a school for backward pupils where man-ual training is taught.

MORE FARMS SOLD

Two More Adams County Farms Pur-chased.

C. J. Delone Esq., on Friday after-noon, sold at public sale the following farmsteads, formerly owned by S. L. Johns. Two tracts in Oxford town-ship, tract No. 1 formerly the John Klunk farm, containing 84 acres and 82 perches, and tract No. 2 containing 5 acres and 84 perches are contiguous and constitute one farm, located about two miles south west of New Oxford, was sold as a whole to Eugene Law-rence, of near Irishtown, at $60 per acre. The former Lewis J. Delone farm, containing 115 acres and 7 per-ches, situated in Conowago township, Adams county, near McBetystown, was purchased by Jacob Murren, of near Mt. Rock, at $100.75 an acre.

SEVEN HOURS

Musical Play to be Produced in the Wizard Tuesday Evening.

There is a quaint character in "Seven Hours in New York" in the person of "Nifty" a taxicab driver. Nifty was a hack driver in New York many years before the equine was sup-planted by the gasoline tank. His funny sayings are always received with roars of laughter. Nifty has much to do with the plot of Matthew Ott's clever play. You will surely enjoy "Seven Hours in New York", which is announced for the Wizard Theatre on Tuesday evening. Adver-tisement.

FARM FOR SALE

The undersigned Executor of John Hammers, deceased, late of Highland township, Pa., will sell at private sale the farm 3 1/2 miles West of Gettysburg, called the "Sunnyside" Farm, contain-ing about 100 acres, about 80 acres of land clean as any garden, the rest is grow-ing tall timber, poplar, oak and hick-ory. This farm can be bought cheap, part of the money can remain in the property. The interest in 20 acres of growing grain can go with the sale. Fruit experts say there is no land with-in the county better adapted for fruit than this farm. This farm planted in apple and peach would bring $10,000. in a few years.

If not sold by January 1, 1913, it will be for rent. Farms all around this are asking from $2,000 to $3,000 more than asked for this farm. This farm now produces as good crops with-out lime and fertilizers, as farms of like size do with, which speaks well for the soil.

S. S. W. HAMMERS, Executor.

INDIAN ORCHESTRA

The Iroquois Indian Orchestra will be the attraction at teachers' institute on Tuesday evening. The orchestra consists of soloists picked from the best Indian artists in America. Nearly all are graduates from some institution of learning and are musicians of rare abil-ity. Conductor David Russel Hill is a full-blooded Onondaga Indian Chief, of family long noted for their oratory and their prominence in governmental affairs. in the history of their tribe. He was graduated from the Hampton Normal School of Virginia. Advertise-ment.

from Waterloo station. It is now half-past three. As you will observe, my work has not yet commenced."

"I sent the boy to meet you. I wished you to hear my story before you saw—the police up at the house. I should like to tell you all I know."

"That will, doubtless, be very valu-able," said the little inspector. "Can you find us a place where we shall not be disturbed?"

For answer she led the way through the wicket-gate. A couple of turns and the winding walk brought us to an open space in the laurels and rhododendrons. On the further side was a garden bench, and there we seated ourselves, waiting, with great anxiety on my part at least, for further details of the tragedy.

"My father was a widower," said Miss Sherrick, "and when he died he left as my guardians and trustees my mother's two brothers, Colonel Bulstrode and Mr. Anstruther Bulstrode, Colonel Bulstrode, who had been in the Indian Staff Corps, had retired the year before my father's death, and taken this house. It was with him that I went to live. Richmond suited him, for he could spend the day at his London club and yet be home in plenty of time for dinner."

"My uncle Anstruther was also an Anglo-Indian. He had been for many
